Schooling species of bait fish breathe from swimming while allowing water to pass over their gills. When held in the relatively small confines of a bait tank the fish suffer from a lack of oxygen as they can not swim fast enough to provide enough water to pass over their gills. A Pro Flow tank, with its patented directional flow water inlet baffle, allows water to enter evenly throughout the entire water column.

The slots in the baffle plate are cut at an angle, directing water against the side wall and creating a circular directional flow. This flow actually pushes fresh, oxygen-rich water over their gills - which keeps the fish swimming in the same direction and reduces collision, a major cause of scale loss in bait tanks. A no-clog drain baffle provides drainage over the entire water column.

The molded-in sash guard keeps slosh and wet decks to a minimum. The light dome in the bottom of the tank eases nighttime access and prevents fish from hitting the walls in the dark. All tanks come with "L" mounting brackets, a durable molded cover (Models PF-37/42 have a solid poly cover) and are covered by a no-nonsense 1 year warranty.
